Update from Lydia

Aloha Everyone!

It has been a while since we last published a newsletter, however there has not really been much to write about.

I want to thank everyone who participated in our Easter Brunch. It was a great success and a welcome diversion on what turned out to be a rather slow day for selling art.

A date for our next event – an ART SUPPLIES SWAP – has been set. It will take place on Sunday, June 7th. We will set up a table for the supplies and you will have a chance to take something if you brought something. At the end of the day, the supplies still left will be donated or thrown away. We are all art supply “aholics” to some degree, so please spend some time unearthing those unused, rarely used, hardly used supplies and bring them down to share with others. No one appreciates dried up tubes of paint, worn brushes, moldy paper, etc. Please bring only things in good condition that you would happily give to a friend. We can have a lot of fun with this! Art books and magazines are also welcome, as well as frames in good condition. This is your chance to clean up and clean out, so please join us in the fun.

Our Website

Our website is a precious resource for getting the word out about us as a group and as individual artists. If you are new to the Zoo Fence and have a website, please contact our Webmaster, webguy@artonthezoofence.com and give him a link to your website.

Those of you who are already represented on our site may update your artwork or send more artwork to be uploaded. We all need to be taking more advantage of this website and giving our Webmaster new material on a regular basis.

Toward that end, I will attempt to have our newsletters on our site for all to read, starting with this one. This will help people to understand that we are a real organization with a board of directors and social events.

Hal Krause

We lost our dear friend and longtime Zoo Fence artist, Hal Krause, on March 9, 2009. Hal and Inge were a fixture on the Fence for many years, displaying their professional photography from local sites and abroad. We miss you Hal!

Zoo Fence Artist Bailey Leung

Bailey Leung was born and raised in China. His art works began as a hobby focusing on things around him. His earliest memories include drawing people, trees, and flowers. Bailey knew then that he was blessed with a unique artistic ability.

However, his own artistic career did not begin until he moved to Hong Kong at the age of thirty-two, and he has never stopped since.

Bailey's works have been displayed in many art exhibitions throughout Hong Kong and China. He has resided in Hawaii since 2004 and is represented locally by Sunshine Arts Gallery in Kaneohe. Bailey and his paintings have been a popular addition to the Zoo Fence and we wish him all the best!
